Cereal REnaissance in Rural Europe: embedding diversity in organic and low-input food systems

Grant agreement n°: 727848

H2020 - Research and Innovation Action

Report on Stakeholder Mapping

Due date: Jun 2018

Actual submission date: 28 January 2019

Project start date: November 1st, 2015

Duration: 36 months

Workpackage concerned: 5

Concerned workpackage leader: UREAD

Lead Beneficiary: UREAD

Dissemination level:

PU: Public (must be available on the website)

CO: Confidential, only for members of the consortium (including the Commission Services)

CI: Classified, as referred to in Commission Decision 2001/844/EC

The stakeholder mapping reflects the current knowledge base of the partners. The stakeholders identified in the initial mapping reflect the local and regional focus of many of the partner institutions, with many local-level and regional or municipal actors rather than international and EU-wide actors. Indeed, none of the partners listed an EU-wide stakeholders in this first phase of mapping.

Stakeholders were identified by surveying all partners for contacts with organisations and individuals from across the organic and artisanal cereals value chains in their respective countries. Each was asked to identify key actors in these value chains, and provide geographic and internet information about each of them, classify the type of actor they are, and how close their work is to the goals of the project (i.e. primary, secondary or tertiary stakeholders). A methodology was decided that once the requested information was gathered by partners, UREAD would process and organise it. At that point, an editorial committee composed of CERERE project members would review the list, and agree which stakeholders should appear on the map online, based on their alignment with the project goals.

Primary stakeholders from across the partner countries are from a range of types of organisation: individual producers, farmers, businesses, associations, artisans (i.e. bakers) There are three listed in France that are national, the rest of the primary stakeholders are regional or municipal Secondary stakeholders are largely covering larger geographic areas within a country, and are primarily associations, interested organisations (i.e. certification bodies), and larger businesses. The exception to this is in the UK, where there are some small food producers listed as secondary stakeholders.

The only partners to identify tertiary stakeholders are in the UK, Italy, Ireland, Finland and Spain. These stakeholders are businesses, millers, suppliers, policy makers and associations related to the goals of the project but not directly involved.

Table 1. Summary of stakeholders' type by country

Country	Primary	Secondary	Tertiary	Total
Denmark	6			6
Finland	5	5	1	11
France	3	26		29
Hungary	4	31	4	39
Ireland	1	4	1	6
Italy	1	21	2	24
Spain	23	6	1	30
UK	6	13	33	52
TOTAL	49	106	42	197

Very few of the project partners have included comprehensive information about the stakeholders they identified. In order to meet the requirements of the activity, we need at the very least contact information (i.e. website or an indication that the partner does not have an online presence), city or region (depending on their area of activity), and one sentence about what they do or relevance to the project. This information is still missing for many stakeholders, so the current document is substantially incomplete. This has made creating a map impossible, and completion of the reporting challenging. We did not have sufficient information for the editorial group decided in Florence in 2017 to make decisions about stakeholders to be included in the map on the project website.

Given the potentially personal nature of some of the stakeholder contacts, in the next revision of this list, partners need to ensure that they indicate whether these contact details may or may not be made public on the map for the CERERE website. One issue we will need to take into consideration is the new GDPR legislation on how we are able to contact the stakeholders and get their consent to be part of the online mapping exercise. The original design is unlikely to be GDPR-compliant, and therefore must be updated. This will likely involve more effort from the partners, as we are not allowed to contact the stakeholders in the same way as before. UREAD will need to seek legal advice from the Research Services to ensure this is done appropriately. In the meantime, the project partners should consider having sign-up sheets at public events, so potential stakeholders can opt-in to participating in the CERERE network.

As this is intended to be a “living document”, the next step will be to agree how to gather new information from new stakeholders or interested groups who attend CERERE events. It is suggested that there be a sign-up sheet for groups, individuals or their representatives who would like to be in touch with the project. From here, these can be filtered into stakeholders to be in contact with and stakeholders to include in the map. Similarly, a sign-up button on the website may be added for those who are engaging with the online presence of the project. We will analyse the spread of stakeholders across the types and the nature of the stakeholder’s interest in the project (i.e. baker, miller, producer). Where there are gaps, we will seek to increase the number of stakeholders in that area over the next year. All partners will be responsible for contributing the requested information to the stakeholder mapping spreadsheet (except FormicaBlu) in order to complete a robust and complete map. The final map will be for public consumption on the CERERE website.
